WINTER PARK, FL (September 2, 2008) – Deepti Dhiman, LEED AP, coauthored a research paper that was published and presented at the 10th International Conference on Computers in Urban Planning and Urban Management (CUPUM) held in Iguassu Falls, Brazil, on the 11th-13th of July, 2007. Ms. Dhiman currently serves as the Community Planner at Land Design Innovations Inc., in Winter Park, Florida (www.landbiz.com).

Ms. Dhiman's paper "Analyzing the impact of socioeconomic characteristics and street layout on the crime rates at urban neighborhood business districts" was the world's first use of the Space Syntax Technology to analyze the relationships between the location of the crime and the spatial characteristics and the socioeconomic factors.
